REMARKS

Rae -

I checked with the DDI/ExA and he advised that this progress report was prepared of their own initiative and not in response to any specific tasking. Dick Kerr did an internal assessment of how they were progressing toward accomplishment of goals and thought that they might as well send report to DCI.

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence
Deputy Director of Central Intelligence

FROM: Richard J. Kerr
Deputy Director for Intelligence

SUBJECT: Mid-Year Progress Report: Directorate of Intelligence Goals for 1988

REFERENCE: DDI's Memo to DCI and DDCI dtd. 11 January 1988,
Subject: Directorate of Intelligence Goals for 1988 (DDI 00027-88)

1. Six months ago I outlined for you the Directorate of Intelligence's goals for 1988. As I noted at that time, the Directorate's main mission continues to be the production of accurate, timely, policy-relevant intelligence on key foreign problems. There is no single yardstick that can adequately measure progress in the accomplishment of that mission. To tally the papers we have published would risk emphasizing quantity at the expense of quality. Moreover, as in most years, some of our largest analytical efforts have been on turbulent problem areas (such as Central America and the Persian Gulf) on which only a few of our products could have been planned far in advance. [REDACTED]

2. The referenced memo did lay out six major goals, however, along with associated specific tasks, which were more peculiar to 1988. The following recapitulates those goals and summarizes the progress we have made so far and what we have yet to do. [REDACTED]
